Solume Light, But Orders Varied in Nature of Securities Handled and Tone Firm.

Though trading on the Washingto Stock Exchange today was compara- Wash .. tively light, the orders filled being for dd lots rather than quotations in the majority of instances, it was very general, with no particular issued featuring the activity.

Sales recorded in the stock list in juded fifteen shares of Washington and Storage stock, a comparatively inactive security, at 119. Trading in the bond list was limited to one $1,000 Georgetown Gas 5 at 103%, a Capital Traction 5 at 107%, and one $1,000 Potomac Electric Power consolidated 5 at 93%.

William B. Hibbs, head of the firm of W. B. Hibbs & Co., bankers and brokers, appeared on the exchange today after an absence of more than a week, spent in New York and at his home at Leesvurg, Va.

Both factions now fighting for the control of the First National Fire Insurance Company are preparing to resist the attempt made by Charles T. McNally, president of the Coos County National Bank, of Groveton, N. H., to restrain the election of directors scheduled for next Thursday. Mr. McNally filed suit in the District Supreme Court Seturday asking the appointment of a Nat. Savings & Trust. 267 Saturday asking the appointment of a receiver for the First National and the issuance of an order against its officers restrain the election.

Robert J. Wynne, deposed president of the company, who is now seeking to secure proxies of stockholders and to secure proxies of stockholders and effect the election of a new board of directors favorable to himself, declared today that he and his friends will make every effort to defeat Mr. McNally's purpose.

Hugh H. Obear, of counsel for the officers of the First National, was equally emphatic in his assertions that there is no occasion for the reequally emphatic in his assertions that there is no occasion for the relief that Mr. McNally is asking. None of the defendants have yet been served with a rule to show cause why the court should not issue that the state of the sought and approximately provided that the state of the sought and approximately state of the sought and approximately state of the sought and approximately sought and approximately state of the sought and so the restraining order sought and ap-point the receiver. At the clerk's office, however, it was said that the order was expected to be issued to-day.

The annual report just issued by the International Harvester Company, of New Jersey, shows gross income from operations of $13,284,670.74, which less the charges for maintenance, deprecharges for maintenance, deprethe charges for maintenance to the charges left a net profit for the season of $7,915,525.78. Rev. J. W. Chambers, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who bursements of $4,100,000 left a sur-plus at December 31, 1913 of $13,608.-

Report of Huerta's Abandonment of Tampico Blockade Gives Stocks a Boom.

NEW YORK, June 8 .- Open fractionally lower than the closing prices of Saturday under the influence of disturbed foreign conditions and the disappointment incident to the failure of the Interstate Commerce Commission to render a decision in the freight rates case, the New York market quickly developed a strong undertone, and not only recovered its recessions but registered small gains.

The announcement that Huerta had rescinded his order for a blockade of Tampico, a situation that had promised to complicate the Mexican disturbances, was credited in a measure with the le-velopment of strength in the market, as velopment of strength in the market, as was the report that the Colorado strike was approaching a state where peaceful settlement seemed probable.

The Sugar stocks were among the strongest in the list, American Sugar advancing 1½ points to 109½, and American Beet Sugar 2½ points. This sharp advance in the sugars a attributed to the approach of the canning season with fruit and vegetable crops helding forth prospects of breaking records. American Can was higher on the same outlook. United States Steel led the industrials, while Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, and Erie were among the strongest of eral is "there."

The Postmaster General knows how to "unlimber," to drop the formalities of office and become a 'regular guy," for it has been proven times innumerable. When the onrush of office seekers becomes a trifle wearying, and the ceaseless grind as head of one of the great branches of the Government service becomes intolerable, the Postmaster General slips out of his office, after calling some personal friends on the telephone, leaves his official capacity behind, and becomes the simple and unassuming Albert Burleson of private life.

Judge Aukam, of the Municipal court, owns a dinky little motor cruiser of the bridge-deck type, which is equipped with every scacomfort known to the shipbuildertransom berths, galley, ice boxes, lockers, and all-and it is on this happy craft that plain Albert Burleson, with George Aukam and Tom, Dick, and Harry, whatever they may answer to, hie themselves away to the lower stretches of the broad Potomac.

Larder Well Supplied.

The larder is well supplied for an extended trip, and the simple yet ample meals are further supplemented by gleaming fish from the river-when the piscators are successful. They take no henchmen along, no slaveys to wait on them, cook or wash the dishes, but assume these duties in turn and revel in their labors.

Judge Augum is captain of the ship, and the others are his subordinates-at his orders, as marine custom dictated. They are all good sportsmen and true-and under this classification they each have a particular pride, for each and every one
